

Jan Resseger: How the School Marketplace Wrecks Universal Public Schooling

Jan Resseger's October 25 Blog shows why public school advocates must ramp-up advocacy for the public common school ideal. Her concluding paragraph is extremely compelling:

“As public schools endure a raging attack from the far right, we need to remember the importance of protecting public education—our nation’s system of publicly funded, universally available, and publicly accountable schools. Public schools are the optimal institution for balancing the needs of each particular student and family with the community’s obligation to create a system that, by law, protects the rights of all students.”

<https://janresseger.wordpress.com/2022/10/25/36002/>