

The consequences of the universal school voucher scheme seeping out.

The consequences of the universal EdChoice voucher proposal tucked into the state biennial budget last June are finally getting the attention of the media and thus Ohioans.

The universal voucher scheme was inserted into the budget bill during 11th hour political maneuvers when the public had no opportunity to weigh-in. This type of political maneuvering is the same strategy that has been used to enact all the school choice (privatization of the public common school) legislation.

It is not too late for the public to become involved in this matter. The lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of the EdChoice voucher scheme will keep the public informed. To learn how to help, click here.
