

Vouchers for folks who choose to use private parks instead of public parks.

Yellowstone National Park, primarily located in Wyoming, no doubt gets crowded at times. It is available to all citizens and other folks at the nominal cost of park entry. There are other parks of interest, which are operated privately. Some or most of them have an entrance fee that is typically more than the public park fee.

Folks who do not want to mingle with the general population have the right to an exclusive private park at their own expense. Should these private park preference folks be awarded a tax-supported private park voucher?
