School district personnel should inform school district residents of the amount of voucher tax money the private schools are collecting in total and per pupil. It will surprise some school patrons that private schools in most districts are receiving more state funds per pupil than the school district receives.

In addition to voucher funds, private schools receive a healthy dose of Auxiliary Services funds and Nonpublic Administrative Cost Reimbursement funds. That's not all; --private schools receive student transportation services, courtesy of the public school district.

School district officials and patrons may wish to sum the tax revenue given to all the private schools in the school district. 35 private schools each collected more than $3 million in voucher money in FY2024. Slightly less than 10 collected more than 4 million each.

The left set of 3 columns show the number of EdChoice expansion vouchers, the total FY2024 payments and the per voucher amount.

The set of 3 columns to the right of the name of the provider school shows the number of EdChoice vouchers, the total FY2024 payments and the per voucher amount.

The last 3 columns display the totals of both classes of vouchers.
